Welcome Note from Heather Baily, Chair of the Security Industry Authority

Dear Applicant,

Thank you for taking the time to consider applying to become a Non-Executive Member of the Security Industry Authority (SIA). The Authority is made up of six members – five Non-Executive Directors and the Chair. As the regulator of the private security industry, we have a remit across the whole of the United Kingdom. Authority members together with the Chief Executive and her Executive Directors form the SIA Board, overseeing the delivery of the SIA's corporate objectives.

This is an exciting and challenging time for the SIA. The organisation has a key role to play in delivering on the recommendations within the Manchester Arena Inquiry Report (Volume 1) contributing to the development of the Protect duty and contributing to the national strategy to reduce violence against women and girls. We are also committed to delivering on the objectives set out in our current three-year Corporate Plan. The Authority continues to work with our Chief Executive, Michelle Russell and her senior team to ensure the SIA continues to implement our strategic priorities, whilst also managing the impact of the coronavirus pandemic on our people, the private security industry and the partners we work with. Our aim remains to deliver high quality and effective regulation.

Our primary focus will always be to ensure the public is protected. We remain committed to raising and improving standards in the industry and have continued to engage with our partners and people across the industry on issues and developments that matter to them. We are also very mindful of the need to respond in a positive and practical way to issues that have an impact on all communities including women's safety and the diversity and inclusion issues that impact both on those we regulate and within our own organisation.

The Authority has a complementary set of skills including some industry experience. As the Chair, I am looking to add to our skill set in order that we can effectively meet new challenges and continue to develop our response to public safety and high regulatory standards. I would be particularly pleased to hear from colleagues working within the private security industry, those with strategic finance experience and an accountancy qualification in order to recruit a new Chair of the Audit and Risk Committee when our current Chair of that group, Trevor Reaney leaves us later this year. I am also interested to hear from colleagues with public sector experience and/or experience of delivering public services in Northern Ireland or Scotland. We are also very committed to widening the diversity of the Board and warmly encourage applications from a broad range of backgrounds and professional experience.

These are challenging and exciting times for our organisation and I do hope you will consider applying to join the SIA and share with us, the next stage of our development.

Heather Baily
Chair, Security Industry Authority

About the Security Industry Authority

The SIA is the organisation responsible for regulating the private security industry. It is an independent body reporting to the Home Secretary, under the terms of the Private Security Industry Act 2001. Its purpose is to protect the public through effective regulation of the private security industry and working with partners to raise standards across the sector. Its remit covers the United Kingdom. It is an arm's length body (ALB) of the Home Office.

Role and Background

The SIA has two main duties. One is the compulsory licensing of individuals undertaking designated activities within the private security industry; the other is to manage the voluntary Approved Contractor Scheme, which measures private security suppliers against independently assessed criteria.

SIA licensing covers security guarding, door supervision, close protection, cash and valuables in transit, and public space surveillance using CCTV, key holding and (in Northern Ireland) vehicle immobilisation. Licensing ensures that private security operatives are fit and proper persons who have appropriate entry training and are qualified to do their job.

The SIA's Approved Contractor Scheme sets out operational and performance standards for suppliers of private security services. Organisations that meet these standards are awarded Approved Contractor status. This accreditation provides purchasers of private security services with independent proof of a contractor's commitment to quality.

The SIA believes that a professional, regulated private security industry is a valuable member of the extended police family, playing their own part to reduce crime, disorder and the fear of crime.

The SIA is currently organised in three directorates: Licensing and Standards, Inspections and Enforcement and Corporate Services; which together with two other functional areas (Strategy and Governance, and Risk and Assurance) report into the Chief Executive. Each directorate is composed of several functional areas that are responsible for specific day-to-day operations.

Current SIA Members are:

- Heather Baily – Chair
- Trevor Reaney
- Kate Bright
- Alec Wood
- Zoe Billingham

Registration of interests: The purpose of these provisions is to avoid any danger of a public appointee being influenced, or appearing to be influenced, by their private interests in the exercise of their public duties.

Public appointments require the highest standards of propriety, involving impartiality, integrity and objectivity, in relation to the stewardship of public funds and the oversight and management of all related activities. This means that any private, voluntary, charitable, or political interest which might be material and relevant to the work of the body concerned should be declared. It is important, therefore, that you consider your circumstances when applying for a public appointment and identify any potential conflicts of interest, whether real or perceived.

There is a requirement to declare any actual or potential conflict of interest you may have in being appointed to the SIA in a separate form. Any actual or perceived conflicts of interest will be fully explored by the Panel at interview stage.

Political activity: Members will need to show political impartiality during their time on the SIA and must declare significant party-political activity they undertake in the period of their appointment. Details of the successful candidate’s declared political activity must be published by appointing departments when the appointments are publicised.

The Political Activity Declaration will be kept separate from your application and will only be seen by the Panel prior to interview – the Panel may at that stage explore with candidates any potential for conflict of interest. It is appreciated that political activities may have given you relevant skills, including experience gained from committee work, collective decision making, resolving conflict and public speaking. If, therefore, you have had such experience and you consider it relevant to your application for this post, you may if you choose include it separately in the main body of your application.

Disability Confident: The Home Office is an accredited user of the Government’s “Disability Confident” disability symbol, which denotes organisations which have a positive attitude towards disabled applicants. Applicants who meet the minimum criteria in the job specification are guaranteed an interview. Selection will be on merit. If you wish to apply for consideration under this scheme, please complete the form in Annex B. It is not necessary to state the nature of your disability.

Whether you choose to apply under the Disability Confident scheme or not, you can still ask us to make particular arrangements for you when attending an interview. You can also contact us if you want to discuss the criteria for the role or have questions regarding your application.

Equal Opportunities Monitoring: The Home Office is committed to providing equal opportunities for all, irrespective of age, disability, gender reassignment, marriage and civil partnership, pregnancy and maternity, race, religion or belief, sex and sexual orientation.

As part of the application process we ask candidates to complete equal opportunities monitoring information. This will help us to monitor selection decisions to assess whether equality of opportunity is being achieved. The information in Annex C will be treated as confidential and used for statistical purposes only. The form will not be treated as part of your application.

Centre for Public Appointments Database: As set out in Annex B, if you consent, we will retain your CV and contact details for the purposes of alerting you to any opportunities that may arise in future. We will also share your CV and contact details with the Centre for Public Appointments in the Cabinet Office who may use it for this purpose. They may also share it with other Government Departments so that they can contact you about such opportunities. You may withdraw your consent to your information being processed for this purpose at any time by contacting dpo@homeoffice.gov.uk.

Complaints: If you are not completely satisfied with the way your application is handled at any stage of the competition, please raise any complaint in the first instance with the Public Appointments Team at: publicappointments@homeoffice.gov.uk

We will reply to your complaint within 20 days.

If, after receiving our response you are still not satisfied, you may contact the Commissioner for Public Appointments:
